SYNOPSIS

Under state law, no money can be spent by the City without authorization from the Council in the form of an appropriation ordinance.

Therefore, the Board of Public Works must appropriate $6,000 for engineering work on a pavement marking demonstration grant even though the money will be almost immediately reimbursed by the State.

The City's casualty insurance bill came in higher than budgeted because the City has not kept the insurance agent properly informed about its gross payroll. Gross payroll is the basis for the agent's determination of the amount and cost of workmen's compensation coverage and is in part the basis for the determination of general liability coverage.

Because Congressional action in September of 1977 severely limited expenditures from Local Public Works funds to "payroll related costs," the balance of that fund can be used to pay very few of the City's expenses. It may be used for workmen's compenation in which case the coverage would not affect tax rates or capital improvement monies.
