- Please put “sufficient quality housing available for all” in the vision statement.
- I’d like to see the city explore new and different types of communities for the aging baby boomer population. Develop policies and practices to promote viable options other than nursing homes (e.g. occupancy rules, etc.). It’s a challenging, new world!
- Many larger cities are dealing with population issues by creating more bike and pedestrian paths and increasing population in the city centers. I would like to see this smart growth approach in Bloomington. Downtown life is largely unaffordable for the average citizen – a problem for this model!
