1. Monthly Community Service Projects

Semesters: Spring / Fall

Required?: Optional

Students Participating: Depends on organization we are working with

Students participate: As a Group

Group size/s: 10-40

How is Volunteering/Service Learning associated with this program/event? The Hutton Honors College Community Service Program looks for monthly group community service projects in which we can pair with a community organization. We have a large mailing list of honors students who would like to participate in these group projects. Often in the past projects usually take 10-40, but with the right coordination and planning ahead probably more students could participate in an event if there is a need for it. We have often done a one time or annual event (like the Haunted House at the Boys and Girls Clubs' annual Halloween party), but we are looking to start some smaller groups that could volunteer monthly with an organization. Also, many students are interested in individual opportunities or ones they could do with a friend or two, so we would enjoy hearing about those opportunities too and could pass them along to our students via a blog on our website that lists upcoming volunteer/community service events.

- Other goals for developing community partnerships: Having students give back to the community they call home during their college years, getting to know other students through group-oriented projects, and getting to know the Bloomington community and its needs through participating in service. We especially hope that the group projects will help students to venture out to do service and then become more interested in seeking out individual opportunities, hopefully by seeing the needs of different community organizations through participating in group projects.

Is Volunteering/Service Learning associated with this program/event?

The I.U. Office of Service-Learning works with non-profit agencies, public sector organizations and local, small businesses in Bloomington and Monroe County each year to combine academic theory with practical experience by facilitating direct service and project-based service between I.U. classes and community partners. The purpose is to benefit the community while at the same time broadening students' understanding of the curriculum and enhancing their sense of civic engagement.

Other goals for developing community partnerships: The Office of Service-Learning would like to connect with a diverse collection of community agencies in order to provide I.U. students with a wide range of opportunities to serve in the community.

Semesters: Any Semester or Summer

Students Participating:                      Required?: Required

Students participate: Individually              Group size/s:

Is Volunteering/Service Learning associated with this program/event?

Students receive academic mentoring, partner with a site supervisor, and fill a role for the organization in various capacities, per need and mission of the organization. For instance, students may compile research and put together a policy proposal, act in an advocacy capacity, or take on a task envisioned by the organization to further its mission for which no current staff has time to accomplish, for example, compile research, suggest policy, present results to the board or to local or state legislators.

- Other goals you are trying to achieve through volunteer or service learning that a Community Organization could help you with?

Students will be guided in development along the lines of their area of interest, especially involving increased political and civic engagement in their chosen profession.

The PACE program would also like to develop relationships with various organizations to encourage student involvement and learning for serving in the public sphere.
