

ImagineBloomington Workshop 10: Templeton Elementary School (4/4/2012)

Survey General Comments

- We may be approaching the point where Monroe County is “built-out” and that may be a good thing for it makes us intensify our quality of development.
- Better east-west bike infrastructure
- Found the Mayor’s comments about problem behaviors at the Library being a result of Shalom pulling in clients from other counties bizarre. I felt this even before the hoopla/controversy. If he felt this were an issue, he could address it w/Shalom leadership – rather than undermining support for the organization.
- Bloomington is not leading in water conservation, rehabbing building to save energy – incentives for solar & other alternative energy. All programs are small – they could be big – the community would support it. Cost will be going up & incomes both for individual and the city will be going down. Conservation & savings in energy can be of help. Planning should be aware of energy cost. Schools are talking of charging for bus transportation. Compact urban form and city bus system should be aware of future trends.

Other Comments Received

- Let us raise goats (w/in City limits).