

PROCLAMATION

- WHEREAS, Hans Tischler is one of the world's foremost authorities on early Medieval polyphony as well as the music and poetry of medieval troubadours; and
- WHEREAS, Hans is a pioneer in the study of Gustav Mahler's compositional style; and
- WHEREAS, Hans is a scholar of wide-ranging interests beyond those already mentioned, including the music of Mozart, Mendelssohn and Hindemith; and
- WHEREAS, Hans is the author of a textbook on harmony; and
- WHEREAS, Hans is a respected and beloved colleague and teacher at universities in America and Israel, and most of all at the Jacobs School of Music in Bloomington, Indiana; and
- WHEREAS, Hans is a founder of the Bloomington Chamber Music Society; and
- WHEREAS, Hans is a pianist, conductor, composer and all-around musician; and
- WHEREAS, Hans is a polyglot of modern and ancient languages and a true humanist; and
- WHEREAS, Hans is an example to numerous generations of graduate students and colleagues on how to live well and remain productive for over 70 years; and finally
- WHEREAS, Hans is a significant environmental hazard (just think of all the trees that have been felled to publish all those books).

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Mark Kruzan, Mayor of Bloomington, Indiana, do hereby proclaim Friday, January 18, 2008, as in Bloomington, Indiana, and call on all citizens to congratulate Hans on his 93rd birthday.

Hans Tischler Day

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have here unto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Seal of the City of Bloomington this 18th day of January 2008.

Mark Kruzan, Mayor
City of Bloomington
