No waiver by any party of any term of this Agreement shall be considered to be a waiver of any other term or breach thereof.
15. Severability. The invalidity, illegality or unenforceability of any provision of this Agreement or the occurrence of any event rendering any portion or provision of this Agreement void shall in no way affect the validity or enforceability of any other portion or provision of this Agreement. Any void provision shall be deemed severed from this Agreement, and the balance of the Agreement shall be construed and enforced as if it did not contain the particular provision to be held void. The parties further agree to amend this Agreement to replace any stricken provision with a valid provision that comes as close as possible to the intent of the stricken provision. The provisions of this Article shall not prevent this entire Agreement from being void should a provision which is of the essence of this Agreement be determined void.

Unless otherwise stated in the written consent to an assignment, no assignment will release or discharge the assignor from any obligation under this Agreement.

20. Non-Discrimination. Contractor shall comply with City of Bloomington Ordinance 2.23.100 and all other federal, state and local laws and regulations governing non-discrimination, including but not limited to employment. If Contractor believes that a City employee engaged in such conduct towards Contractor and/or any of its employees, Contractor or its employees may file a complaint with the City Department head in charge of the Contractor's work, and/or with the human resources department. The City takes all complaints of harassment and discrimination seriously and will take appropriate disciplinary action if it finds that any City employee engaged in such prohibited conduct. In performing the Services under this Agreement, Contractor shall comply with any and all applicable federal, state and local statutes, ordinances, plans and regulations, including any and all regulations for protection of the environment. Where such statutes, ordinances, plans or regulations of any public authority having any jurisdiction over the project are in conflict, Contractor shall proceed using its best judgment only after attempting to resolve any such conflict between such governmental agencies, and shall notify the City in a timely manner of the conflict, attempts of resolution, and planned course of action.

1. Project Overview

Background

As part of its strategic planning and budget discussions, the Bloomington Common Council identified Public Safety as a priority area for future planning and investment. While public safety is recognized as a key community priority in existing planning documents, the term itself encompasses a wide range of experiences, perspectives, and expectations. Recognizing that meaningful public safety initiatives should be informed by the experiences and priorities of Bloomington residents, the Common Council seeks to engage the community in a structured public dialogue about what public safety means to them and what opportunities exist to strengthen it.

The Community Justice & Mediation Center (CJAM) has been engaged to design and facilitate a community engagement process that creates meaningful opportunities for residents to share their perspectives in a respectful, inclusive, and well-organized environment. CJAM's role is to provide a neutral facilitation process that encourages dialogue, documents community input, and organizes the information gathered in a way that supports future discussions by the Bloomington Common Council.

Purpose of the Engagement

The purpose of this engagement process is to provide Bloomington residents with an opportunity to explore and discuss the concept of public safety, identify community priorities, and consider opportunities for improvement that are within the city government's Bloomington Common Council's capacity to influence. We envision these sessions to be the starting point for the development of a public safety plan for our community.

This engagement is intended to inform future discussions by the Bloomington Common Council and within the Mayor's administration. It is not intended to produce policy recommendations, advocate for particular positions, or build consensus around specific solutions. Rather, the process is designed to gather, organize, and synthesize community perspectives in a way that supports thoughtful and informed discussions decisions by the Bloomington Common Council.

Scope of Engagement

CJAM will design and facilitate a two-session community engagement process supported by project planning, facilitation materials, documentation, and summary reporting. Between the two public engagement sessions, CJAM will analyze participant feedback, identify emerging themes, and collaborate with a designated Council Working Group to refine the objectives and design of the second session based on what is learned during the first.

The project also includes support for public outreach through the creation of promotional materials and outreach recommendations, as well as the preparation of summary documents that capture the themes and priorities identified throughout the engagement process.

Project Objectives

The objectives of this project are to:

- Design a transparent and inclusive public engagement process that encourages meaningful community participation.
- Provide neutral facilitation that creates space for respectful dialogue and broad participation.
- Provide the Bloomington Common Council with a deeper understanding of how the community members present define public safety and identify areas they believe require attention.
- Organize community input into clear themes and priorities that can inform future Common Council discussions.
- Deliver clear documentation of the engagement process and the community perspectives shared throughout the project.
- Recruit a broad variety of participants to participate in the two sessions, with particular effort to include communities that are historically excluded.

2. Facilitation Approach

The Community Justice & Mediation Center (CJAM) approaches facilitation as a structured process that encourages meaningful participation, fosters respectful dialogue, and creates opportunities for community members to share their perspectives. Our role is to design and guide an inclusive engagement process, not to advocate for particular viewpoints or outcomes. The following principles will guide the design and facilitation of this project.

Neutral Facilitation

CJAM facilitators serve as impartial process leaders. Facilitators guide discussion, ask clarifying questions, encourage balanced participation, and help participants remain focused on the purpose of the conversation. Facilitators do not advocate for particular positions, express opinions on discussion topics, or influence the direction of the conversation beyond maintaining an effective process. Documentation produced through this engagement will objectively summarize participant perspectives, recurring themes, and discussion outcomes without evaluating ideas or recommending specific courses of action to the best of our ability.

Inclusive Participation

The engagement process will be designed to encourage broad participation and ensure participants have multiple opportunities to contribute. Small-group discussions, guided questions, facilitated report-outs, and individual reflection opportunities will be used to create an environment where participants with different backgrounds and communication styles can comfortably participate.

Respectful Dialogue

Productive conversations depend on participants feeling heard and respected. Facilitators will establish shared discussion agreements that encourage active listening, curiosity, and respectful engagement with differing perspectives. The objective is not to eliminate disagreement but to create a space where differing viewpoints can be explored constructively.

Adaptive Design

Rather than treating each engagement session as a standalone event, CJAM will use information gathered during the first community conversation to inform the design of the second session. Themes, questions, and areas requiring additional discussion will be reviewed with the Council Working Group to ensure the second engagement builds upon what participants shared during the first.

3. Facilitation Process

The community engagement process is designed as a collaborative and adaptive series of activities that build upon one another. While the overall structure of the project has been established, the design of the second community engagement session will be informed by the themes and questions that emerge during the first session. This approach allows the engagement process to remain responsive to community input while maintaining clear project objectives.

Project Planning

CJAM will meet with designated members of the Council Working Group to clarify project goals, review existing planning documents, establish expectations for the engagement process, and finalize logistical details. During this stage, CJAM will develop the facilitation plan, participant materials, facilitation guides, and supporting resources necessary for the first community engagement session.

Community Engagement Session One

The first community engagement session will focus on understanding how Bloomington residents define public safety and identifying the experiences, concerns, and priorities that shape those perspectives. The session will include a brief project overview and information session, facilitated small-group discussions using guided questions, report-outs from each discussion group, and an opportunity for participants to provide individual feedback through an exit survey.

Reflection & Session Design

Following the first engagement session, CJAM will review facilitator notes, participant feedback, and discussion themes. CJAM will then meet with the Council Working Group to review key findings and collaboratively refine the facilitation design and guiding questions for the second community engagement session.

Community Engagement Session Two

The second community engagement session will build upon the themes identified during the first session. While the exact facilitation design will be informed by the initial engagement, the session will continue to utilize facilitated small-group discussions, report-outs, and participant feedback to explore community priorities and opportunities that are within the Bloomington Common Council's capacity to influence.

Documentation & Project Closeout

Following completion of the engagement process, CJAM will prepare and submit the agreed-upon project documentation, including summaries of each engagement session, a thematic analysis of community input, and a final summary report.
