Re: Ordinance 91-13 (Thomson Consumer Electronics)

Plan Commission Case #MG/PCD-9-91 (Thomson Consumer Electronics) received Plan Commission approval on February 18, 1991.

The approval was granted with the following conditions:

1. Permitted use of the site includes any Thomson use (i.e., use that Thomson currently engages in) that falls within the broad category of uses currently authorized for Thomson at their existing Bloomington site.
2. Access to the site will be via the existing Thomson facilities. A fire access will be provided to Rogers Street along the south line of the PSI energy substation and Robinson Block.
3. A route for a possible future street, configured to accepted engineering standards, will be reserved between Rogers Street and the remnant 80 acres along the fire access. This street might be appropriate as an access to residential development on the 80 acres, particularly if the density of such development is high.
4. The location of the warehouse is not specified in the outline plan. It could be south or west of the existing plant, on the 70-acre PCD site, partly on the PCD site, or not on the PCD site at all. Specific location will be determined by analysis of site conditions and will be at Thomson's discretion.
5. The warehouse will be a basic industrial building with minimum architectural embellishment. Compatibility will be addressed by neutral color, minimal activity to the south, complementary landscaping, and preservation of existing vegetation in those portions of the setback not required as access or clear area for fire protection.

6. Future development plan review of uses unforeseen at this time shall be oriented to accommodation of Thomson's use of the site. Attention will focus on economical means of achieving architectural compatibility (as proposed for the initial warehouse development), buffering of the interface between residential areas and on-site activity, preservation of existing landscape features within the setbacks or where elsewhere appropriate in the context of Thomson's site arrangement and grades. For example, islands of existing trees might be incorporated within a parking or storage area if appropriate to the site plan and consistent with proposed grades. The development plan process shall not be utilized to limit use of the site or to dictate the arrangement of uses on the site.
7. Development plans will include full site engineering, including storm drainage, landscaping, siltation and erosion controls. In general, only the portion of the site to be utilized for development or cut/fill balance should be cleared and graded.
8. Thomson is advised of the city's residential development objectives on the 80-acre remnant and the surrounding area.
9. The Plan Commission requires the right to require setback and buffering requirements at development plan stage for all property lines abutting land which could potentially become residential land. Setbacks and buffering may be required as if the surrounding land were already zoned for residential use.

The conditions of approval are the same as those listed in the Staff Report with the exception of a rewording of Condition #1 and the addition of Condition #9.
