

CITY OF BLOOMINGTON, INDIANA

MEMORIAL TO PERRY V. STEWART

WHEREAS, the untimely death of Perry V. Stewart has caused the entire Bloomington community to feel his loss and thus to remember him with deep appreciation for his admirable ethical qualities, zest for living, indomitable courage, sense of justice for all, and consummate skill in editing and publishing his newspaper for the good of the people it served, and

WHEREAS, during the brief four years that he lived and worked in the community, through the newspaper and in his personal contacts he contributed much of lasting value in responsibly and graciously championing many worthy educational, civic, business, and humanitarian causes, and

WHEREAS, in spite of his progressively deteriorating health his great determination remained undaunted and he quietly made adjustments which permitted him to participate and work productively almost to the end of his life, and

WHEREAS, in his personal relations with fellow citizens and members of his family he was a paragon of public trust and a continuing source of inspiration.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that this Common Council of the City of Bloomington together with the Mayor, do sincerely acclaim these reflections on Perry V. Stewart and do respectfully transmit copies thereof to his wife Ellen, the five daughters Carolyn, Kay, Gale, Judy, and Nancy, to his parents Virgil and Mabel Stewart, and to the management and employees of the Daily Herald Telephone and the Sunday Times Mail.

Dated this 2nd day of April, 1970.

Robert L. Clegg, Jr.

Charles J. Faris

Jack A. Morrison

James C. Clendening

Richard W. Fee, President

John H. Hooker, Jr.,
Mayor

Clyde T. Day

Robert E. Gray

Harry G. Day

Ralph L. Johnson