

YOUR EXPERIENCE. YOUR PERSPECTIVE. OUR COMMUNITY.

A Community Conversation on Public Safety in Bloomington

What makes you feel safe in Bloomington? What experiences have shaped the way you think about public safety, and what could help you and others feel safer?

The Bloomington City Council, in partnership with the Community Justice & Mediation Center (CJAM) as facilitators, invites community members to participate in two public deliberation sessions about safety in Bloomington, September 9 and October 21. The first session will inform the Council about how residents think about public safety and what their experiences are, good and bad, in this area. The second session will be a discussion of public safety priorities and how city government can improve public safety for all.

We want to hear from you. No special knowledge or experience is needed. Your perspective is an important part of the conversation!
