The project has developed tools for assessing local needs as recommended by Irasema. Undocuhoosiers reports expressed enthusiasm by members of local organizations but unable to confirm which of those organizations have voted to support the program. expanded and multiple local organizations are now involved in the steering committee. There is a slight concern regarding the understanding of how the commission's role will play a part viability of some proposed applications of BRIDS project. and how this will impact our community. Irasema has kept in contact with folks involved with this project. there seems to be a need for clarification as to how the CHLA is intended to assist and be involved. Irasema has offered regulatory feedback pertaining to the application of the BRID	The CHLA will continue to look forward to hearing the progress of this project. for ways to support this project. At the current time we will wait to hear from undocuhoosiers for future updates. The CHLA still believes there is a need for something like the BRIDS program. The CHLA does not want to withdraw support, but feels that currently there is little we can do to further the progress. Irasema has volunteered to help with researching policy/regulatory issues. The CHLA thanks Irasema for the time she has given to the BRIDS program.
