Approve Change Orders
#1 through #6 for Old SR
37 and Dunn Correction
Project

Boatman asked if the change orders are approved by INDOT before the Board. Aten explained that when the City pays the upfront costs on an INDOT fun they are based upon the estimated costs. At the end of the project, City pays the contractor for the work completed. The estimate and the actual amounts are never the same. INDOT completes an audit process after the project is completed. If the project costs are under the estimated cost, INDOT cuts the City a check. If the project costs are over the estimated amount, INDOT issues the City an invoice for the difference.

Aten explained these change orders are also approved by INDOT through their Area Engineer. They have a matrix that determines what the cost will be for adding to the contract. Deducts are done by the Area Engineer. All of the change orders that come to the Board have already gone through the INDOT process. In that process, City staff gets to work with the contractor and negotiate prices.

Boatman asked if the City is down to the final payment on the project, since the work is complete.

Aten explained that staff is expecting one more change order that will come before the Board. After that, the City's portion should be completed.

Boatman asked how deducts impact the amount paid upfront.

Aten explained When the City pays upfront, the contract is based on an estimate, and the contractor will be paid an actual amount after the project is done.
