ROLL CALL [6:32pm]

Councilmembers absent: none

Council President Stephen Volan summarized the agenda.

AGENDA SUMMATION [6:33pm]

There were no minutes for approval.

APPROVAL OF MINUTES

Sims declared that he had submitted a financial conflict of interest in regards to Resolution 20-04, which allocated federal funds including approximately $160,000 to the Housing and Neighborhood Department (HAND) for the administration of the fees. Sims stated that some of that money might be used to pay the salary of his wife, Doris Sims, who was the Director of HAND.

REPORTS

- COUNCIL MEMBERS [6:36pm]

Rollo moved and it was seconded to accept the disclosure by Sims. The motion was approved by a voice vote.

Volan memorialized Paul Stern and specified the date and time of the memorial. Volan stated that it was traditional in Greek Orthodox culture to note the passing of someone at 40 days and at one year, and Volan memorialized his father's passing one year ago.

Alex Crowley, Director of Economic and Sustainable Development, introduced Jen Pearl, President of the Bloomington Economic Development Corporation (BEDC), and summarized the updates. Pearl provided an update on the BEDC's mission and activities. There was brief council discussion following the report.

- The MAYOR AND CITY OFFICES [6:38pm]

Rollo asked about a way to recirculate dollars, or to capture wealth and keep it from leaking out of the community.

Council questions:

Pearl responded that that was being considered and needed to be discussed further and provided an example from Indianapolis.

Smith asked about how the best fit for Bloomington was determined.

Pearl responded that assets were examined, including the talent base and the work force pool and provided some examples.

Volan asked about traded versus local, in Pearl's presentation.

Pearl explained that the source was Cluster Mapping 101.

Volan asked if 64% of employment was local serving.

Pearl confirmed that was correct.

There was further discussion on patents, the economy, income and employment.

Flaherty asked about the focus on social impact and specifically looking at future impacts of climate change or environmental change, and about any current initiatives.

Pearl described requirements where the items mentioned could be included, and discussed some examples.

Craig Shonkwiler, City Transportation and Traffic Engineer, Department of Planning and Transportation, gave a report on the resurfacing project on 3rd Street, from College Mall Road to State Route 446. There was council discussion following the report.

Council questions (cont'd):

Piedmont-Smith confirmed her interpretation of the report.

Sims clarified that there would be no lane changes from College Mall Road to Clarizz Boulevard, and asked why there had been a decrease in traffic.

Shonkwiler responded that he did not know.

Rollo asked about storm drain impact on bicycle lanes.

Shonkwiler responded that the bike lanes were off of the curb and that he would ask the department about bicycle-safe drains.

Rollo asked about the center lane and asked if there would be trees or plants, or if it would be only hard space.

Shonkwiler explained that since the project was Indiana Department of Transportation's (INDOT) project, he believed that to be outside the scope, but that a request could be made at a later date.

Rosenbarger asked about what a bicyclist would encounter at Clarizz Boulevard where there was a lane change.

Shonkwiler explained that there was a lane change and there was not a multiuse path that the bicyclist could use, and that there had been discussion about this.

Rosenbarger asked cars turning left, and about safety for pedestrians and bikes, and if there would be anything on cross streets and driveways to alert drivers that there could be pedestrians and bikes.

Shonkwiler stated that that had not been discussed with this project and that it would be up to the city to fund those efforts. Shonkwiler continued that it was monumental to see bicycle lanes put in on a state road.

Flaherty asked about protected bike lanes in relation to the Transportation Plan, and about the computer model and any safety metrics.

Shonkwiler explained that the protected bike lanes are outside the scope of the project. Shonkwiler also stated that the computer model was focused on volume but that there had been studies stating that there were fewer crashes with lane set up like this project.

Smith asked about why the simulation would not include safety metrics.

Shonkwiler clarified that software was a volume metric software, and there were no inputs for safety. Shonkwiler explained that when going from two lanes to one lane, the highest speed slowed down, and there was more uniform speed.

Smith asked if a traffic light would be put in.

Shonkwiler stated that the traffic signal was typically put in for entering an intersection rather than exiting, and traffic signals can also cause crashes.

Volan asked if the bike lanes would be painted like bike boxes that were a different color from the road.

Shonkwiler stated that they would not.

There were no council committee reports.

- PUBLIC [7:18pm]

Greg Alexander spoke about the project that was just discussed, the difficulty of buses pulling out of the bus station, and protected bike lanes.

Rollo asked about 14th Street sidewalk improvements, and if it was enough to complete the project.

Stephen Lucas, Assistant Council Attorney, stated that the amount of funding recommended in the resolution should be more than enough, even with varying construction costs.

There was no public comment.

Piedmont-Smith stated that she appreciated the objective of integrating different housing types and income levels.

Sandberg said that as a member of the Citizen Advisory Committee (CAC) for Social Services, the funding was difficult to allocate because the funds were for salaries which was in high demand in the non-profit world.

Amendment 04 to Ordinance 20-03 was not brought back for discussion.

Sgambelluri asked if the language included in the ordinance precludes charging fees for those individuals who put 20% down and develop a payment plan.

Council questions:

Lucas responded that it was not written to allow for interest charges or financing charges and that his reading of section A precludes those types of charges. Lucas stated that section B was written for consensual towing services.

Martin Poutine stated that he came to speak as a driver and asked council to ensure that towing rotation was open to all.

Public comment:

Cody Chandler stated that he appreciated the council allowing input from owners, and asked council for clarity on the 20% an individual must pay to retrieve their car, and if it could be closer to 50%.

Max Stryker spoke to the cost of recouping money from a payment plan from individuals, and ensuring they are paid for the work they do.

Piedmont-Smith asked about the comment pertaining to towing rotation being open to all.

Council questions:

Michael Rouker, City Attorney, stated that the city utilized four companies on the towing rotation, for city-initiated tows. Rouker stated that the rotation was not open to all the companies, and that no money was exchanged.

Piedmont-Smith asked about the transparency for the companies that were included.

Rouker stated that it was based on the quality of service and work done, much like what was done with other contracts.

Piedmont-Smith clarified that the four companies were not paid by the city, but are paid by the people who have been towed, and that the city had chosen to partner with four companies because those companies were efficient and responded in a timely manner.

Rollo asked Rouker to comment on the towing companies recouping the 80% payment from individuals on a payment plan or for non-payment.

Rouker responded that, like with other debts, it might not be feasible to hire a lawyer to collect an $80 debt.

Volan asked who the authority was that approved the contracts with the four towing companies, if it was the Police or the Board of Public Works.

Rouker stated that he did not know but would get back to Volan.

Volan asked if the contracts were reviewed.

Rouker stated that they were.

Piedmont-Smith stated that this ordinance would have been better handled with standing committees because the topic was so specific. Piedmont-Smith explained that the committee would have held hearings first, prior to writing the legislation.

Council comment:

Rollo stated that he learned a lot from the topic being before the Committee of the Whole, and that he supported the legislation, but would not be opposed to revisiting it in the future.

Ordinance 20-03 (cont'd)

Flaherty stated that he would appreciate a report one year in because council was attempting to balance competing needs and the struggles of some who were not of means, and who made a mistake and couldn't easily atone for their mistake. Flaherty stated that it was important to have a uniform system.

Sandberg stated that she appreciated the thoroughness of the process and the flexibility of the Committee of the Whole, and that not all issues would have a back and forth with the public. Sandberg explained that she hoped that there were not unintended consequences and that if there were, they could be addressed in the future. Sandberg thanked Sims for continuing the legislation from the previous administration.

Sims stated that he appreciated the input from the Committee of the Whole and that there had been robust debate from stakeholders including tow companies. Sims explained that if you were parked illegally and all the terms or conditions were met in the ordinance, that towing would be fine. Sims continued that it was important that everything was fair and equitable. Sims concluded that there were mechanisms for revisiting legislation. Sims discussed the costs involved in towing responsibilities on a given day in Bloomington.

Volan stated that the language of the ordinance referred to non-consensual towing and that the discussion was based on putting a cap on potential abuses of towing. Volan echoed Sims that ordinances that needed reviewing, could be reviewed. Volan concluded that council should know who approved the contracts of the city-initiated towing.

The motion to adopt Ordinance 20-03 as amended received a roll call vote of Ayes: 9, Nays: 0, Abstain: 0.

Rosenbarger and Sgambelluri presented on Amendment 02.

Rollo asked if the sponsors of Amendment 02 would be willing to remove the word growth.

Council questions:

Sgambelluri stated that the rationale for including the word was intentional, and was based on Bloomington continuing to grow.

Rosenbarger stated that it could also be done at a later meeting.

Volan asked if the intent of including the word growth in the title was in an effort to reign in growth.

Sgambelluri stated that it was not to reign in growth.

Rosenbarger stated that it was in an effort to address climate change, including increasing local food production, bike lanes, and sidewalk connectivity.

Sgambelluri commented that it would be sustainability as a guiding principle.

Rollo implored council members to understand that sustainable growth was an oxymoronic term because climate change was a symptom of the problem. Rollo stated that the problem was the growth of the human impact on the Earth's biosphere.

Flaherty asked if the sponsors of Amendment 02 would consider Economic and Sustainable Development Committee or Sustainable Development Committee.

Sgambelluri stated that it would be fine for the title to be the Sustainable Development Committee.

Piedmont-Smith asked Volan if the Jack Hopkins Social Services Fund (JHSSF) was still a separate standing committee, and clarified that there would be 8 standing committees, Land Use Committee, and JHSSF. Piedmont-Smith asked if the sponsors were concerned about some council members having more work load and power based on their committees.

Rosenbarger stated that the work load would be distributed more evenly.

Council questions:

Sgambelluri responded that council members were able to attend any committee and were not precluded from being a part of that committee’s consideration of legislation.

There were no public comments.

Public comment:

Flaherty stated that for legislation that overlaps, the council would send it to the most appropriate committee or to Committee of the Whole. Flaherty also mentioned that the Sidewalk Committee was another standing committee. Flaherty spoke in support of the changes.

Council comment:

Piedmont-Smith commented that the Sidewalk Committee and Jack Hopkins Social Services Fund were seasonal and didn’t deal with legislation. Piedmont-Smith stated that there would be 8 new standing committees plus Land Use Committee.

Public comment:

Rollo asked Renneisen about a fiscal impact if staff would have a heavier workload.

Council questions:

Renneisen stated that it was possible because professional staff were compensated after either 40 or 45 hours with paid time off, and that this was something they could track for review.

Volan asked how that tracking would be compared to previous meetings.

Renneisen stated that he would not be able to make that comparison and that he was only providing staffs' perspective.

Sandberg asked about a comment regarding council members speaking directly with staff and it being intimidating.

Renneisen stated that requests for information should be directed to department heads.

Rollo spoke about dead time in between meetings and his concern about quorum in committee meetings. Rollo explained additional concerns and stated that he did not support the legislation.

Flaherty stated that he thought the pros of the proposal outweighed the cons. Flaherty commented that there wasn't a current measurement of success with council procedures, and provided examples of how to improve processes.

Sandberg expressed her concerns about the proposal and explained that she saw it as a disservice to council members, city staff, and the public. Sandberg further explained her disdain for the standing committees.

Rosenbarger spoke of her support for standing committees and about the benefits to the public and city staff. Rosenbarger also addressed the concerns of council members who opposed the proposal.

Volan commented on the resolution and the benefit of standing committees. Volan provided examples and reasons for changing the council structure.

Rollo responded to comments from council members and spoke to the benefit of timers instead of standing committees.

Sims spoke about staff concerns, issues that should have been addressed in the past, and the importance of attempting to improve the current system.

Volan discussed timing and addressed council members’ concerns on the proposed resolution.

Resolution 20-01 (cont’d)

Flaherty stated that there were already committees and that if the resolution did not pass, he hoped to add one other committee to address climate change.

Smith commented that he had listened to his colleagues and that he was leaning against the proposal.
