ADAPTING MOTOR VEHICLES FOR PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES

Email - www.nhtsa.dot.gov/cars/rules/adaptive/brochure/brochure.html

This website features a brochure with information based on the experience of driver rehabilitation specialists and other professionals who work with individuals requiring adaptive devices for motor vehicles. It is centered around a process—evaluating needs, selecting a vehicle, choosing a qualified dealer to modify the vehicle, being trained, maintaining the vehicle — that can help avoid mistakes when purchasing and modifying a vehicle with adaptive equipment. It includes information on cost savings, licensing, and helpful organizations. Although the brochure focuses on drivers of modified vehicles, each section contains information for people who drive passengers with disabilities.

Includes individual amputees, amputee education and support groups for amputees, professionals, family members and friends of amputees, amputation or limb loss related agencies, and organizations. The ACA operates on the principle that education enables individuals who have lost limbs to participate knowledgeably in decisions about their own care, services and outcomes. To achieve their highest potential, people with limb loss must play the central role in decisions affecting their lives in order to fully embrace life and opportunities for self-fulfillment. ACA activity update reports are available via the ACA Website and inMotion magazine. One objective of the ACA is to develop accurate information about the US population of amputees to best represent constituents to government, industry, and the world.

ASL ACCESS

4217 Adrienne Dr. Alexandria, VA 22309

FAX 703-799-4896 Email - aslaccess@aol.com

ASL Access promotes public access to a sign language - American Sign Language. The ASL Access Video Collection of over 200 American Sign Language (ASL) videos features heroes and their histories, ideas and ideals. ASL biographies, comedy, poetry, storytelling, sign lessons, classic literature translations, parenting videos, health programs, children's shows, and sophisticated, silent plays, are all found on local library shelves through the work of ASL Access, providing millions of people access to American Sign Language.

People all over the world are interested in American Sign Language. ASL Access has received countless requests for help in finding, evaluating, or bringing access to ASL. As over 90% of deaf children are born to families without experience in visual communication, these children are at risk of falling behind their peers in concept development, language skills, academic achievement, and social savvy. Delays in learning may lead to poor outcomes as these children move towards adulthood. In direct contrast, deaf children who grow up in family or educational environments with people who are fluent in a sign language often develop advanced academic skills, becoming successful citizens and taking leadership positions. The general community includes many people, hearing and deaf, who are interested in visual language and literature. Some deaf individuals prefer to access content information and literature primarily through sign language. People who are in contact with deaf signers often want to learn visual languages. ASL Access makes it easier for these family members, friends, classmates, co-workers and others to find American Sign Language video resources.

The mission of the Judge David L. Bazelon Center for Mental Health Law is to protect and advance the rights of those who have mental disabilities and helps people who have mental illnesses or developmental disabilities to exercise their own choices and have access to resources that enable them to participate fully in communities. It uses litigation, policy analysis, coalition-building, public information and technical support for advocates in four areas of advocacy:

- Advancing Community Membership: Enabling people with mental disabilities to participate equally with other members of the community and enjoy the social, recreational, political, educational and cultural benefits of community life.
- Promoting Self-Determination: People with mental disabilities have the right to be independent, free from coercion and invasion of privacy. This includes economic selfsufficiency, the ability to vote, and having a voice in treatment decisions and accessibility to their treatment records.
- Ending the Punishment of People with Mental Illnesses: Jailing or forcing outpatient treatment on people with mental illnesses is a poor substitute for adequate mental health services. Families shouldn't have to relinquish custody of children with emotional disorders in order to access treatment.

 Preserving Rights: The Bazelon Center defends the rights won by people with mental disabilities.

> The Bloomington Brain Injury Support Network is a collaborative effort of many local organizations and agencies, working together to expand access to local resources for people who experience a brain injury and their caregivers. This voluntary alliance is sponsored by a federal grant from the Health Resources and Services Administration through the Indiana Family and Social Services Administration/Vocational Rehabilitation Services and the Rehabilitation Hospital of Indiana Foundation. Network members work to improve access to brain injury services, educate the community on the needs of persons with brain injury and fill gaps in the existing service network. They also connect people who have experienced a brain injury and want to return to work or school with Resource Facilitation, a service funded through Vocational Rehabilitation Services.

NCIL advances independent living and the rights of people with disabilities through consumerdriven advocacy. NCIL is a national cross-disability, grassroots organization run by and for people with disabilities. NCIL represents thousands of organizations and individuals including Centers for Independent Living (CIL), Statewide Independent Living Councils (SILC), individuals with disabilities, and other organizations that advocate for the human and civil rights of people with disabilities throughout the U.S.

NCIL was founded to embody the values of disability culture and Independent Living philosophy, which emphasizes that people with disabilities are the best experts on their own needs, have valuable perspectives to contribute to society, and are deserving of equal opportunity to decide how to live, work, and take part in their communities. NCIL assists member CILs and SILCs in building their capacity to promote social change, eliminate disability-based discrimination, and create opportunities for people with disabilities to participate in the legislative process. NCIL promotes a national advocacy agenda set by its membership and provides input and testimony on national disability policy. This vision of equality has not yet been fully realized. Many people with disabilities remain imprisoned in nursing homes and civil rights laws are undermined and devalued on an increasing basis.
